

Flu and High Risk Kids

Children with high-risk medical conditions can also face worse problems if they get the flu. That's especially something to be concerned about this year, because we face 2009 H1N1 as well as seasonal influenza. At the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Georgina Peacock says kids with conditions such as chronic lung disease, heart disease, and diabetes, are more likely to develop severe complications if they get the flu. For more visits: <http://www.hhs.gov/news/healthbeat/2009/12/20091207a.html>

Parent Resources Update: Working Together - A Parent's Guide to Parent & Professional Partnership & Communication within Special Education

For more information on practical ideas for parents of children with disabilities to improve their interaction with school staff and become more effective advocates for their child, click here: http://www.disability.gov/education/parent_resources/parent_involvement

DON'T FORGET!

Webinar: Attachment in Early Childhood

Presented by Christy Leaver

Tuesday, February 16, 2010

10:00-12:00 (EST)

Attachment in Early Childhood is an overview of the development of attachment relationships, the critical need for secure attachment in early childhood, and what happens when attachment does not occur. To register click here: <http://www.khsa.org/t&ta.asp>

Does Your Child Have Special Needs? Looking at Development...

Do you know what to do if your child has a delay or disability? The National Association of Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies shares this useful information to help parents identify signs of possible developmental delays. It also provides information on where to go to get the help needed.

The following resource is provided courtesy of the National Association of Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies and ChildCareAware.

<http://eclkc.ohs.acf.hhs.gov/hslc/For%20Parents/Safe%20and%20Healthy%20Family/Health/DoesYourChildH.htm>

Our Pledge: The KY T/TA State Office pledges to provide timely, current, and interesting monthly newsletters for the Head Start and Early Head Start communities and others interested in the field. In keeping with our mission to be more "green," we will provide our easy to read newsletter via email.

We would like to hear from you and encourage your suggestions for newsletter content. Contact the editor: Allyson Taylor mailto: allyson.taylor@stginternational.com